The Midwest ends the month of February in unusually warm fashion, while the grain market posts new record short positions by managed money going into a brand new growing season. Brazil is trending at an above average pace for planting of the Safrina corn crop, which has historically led to better yields. The elephant in the ag marketing space is profitability. .. For 2024 costs remain high and the market is back to 2015 levels, which makes farming very tricky unless we produce record crops which we know from Econ 101 ... equates to lower prices until we produce additional demand. On the bright side US Corn demand for Ethanol and US Soybean crush demand have been crushing record production for the last few weeks and months. The USDA will publish its monthly crushing report Friday afternoon the average estimate for Jan crush is at 196.6 mil bu.
